UAB Integrative Medicine Clinic Staff & Services

Carolina Salvador, MD, a hematologist/oncologist with a special interest in integrative medicine, is the founder of the UAB Integrative Medicine Clinic. Dr. Salvador is one of the few hematologists/oncologists in the United States trained at the University of Arizona’s Integrative Medicine Program. She trained at Helm’s Institute of Medical Acupuncture to be able to offer acupuncture to cancer patients.

Phyllis Mark, PsyD, a psychologist, brings to the UAB Integrative Medicine Clinic extensive expertise in treating patients suffering from physical illness and disability, bereavement, depression, and trauma issues, and she also specializes in multicultural and women’s issues. She completed an internship at the Mindfulness-Based Stress Reduction program at the University of Massachusetts Memorial Medical Center, which incorporates meditation and mindfulness techniques designed to enhance well-being.

Shannon Hancock, E-RYT 200 and YACEP instructor, offers yoga therapy group classes through her company, Shannon Hancock Yoga. Shannon has nearly a decade of hands-on teaching experience, with extensive training in restorative yoga and chair yoga. Her yoga approach is designed to meet patients where they are and explore ways to move, breathe, and be while honoring individual needs. The result is a sustainable, empowering practice that students can take anywhere.

UAB Arts in Medicine offers programs through the UAB Integrative Medicine Clinic that feature Salaam Green (Poetry), Melissa Turnage (Dance and Movement), Elizabeth Vander Kamp (Storytelling and Movement, and Zentangle Drawings), and Valerie Hanks (Visual Arts).

UAB Pastoral Care offers spiritual support, compassionate listening, companionship, and guidance to help patients more easily connect with their most cherished sources of meaning, power, and hope. Its offerings are rooted in the belief that “community is medicine,” and its mission is to meet each patient’s practical, emotional, and spiritual needs.

Integrative Medicine Clinic
The Kirklin Clinic of UAB Hospital inside Hematology/Oncology, 2nd Floor

New Patient Scheduling
205-934-5077

Established Patients
call 205-801-8415 option #1

NOTE: Due to COVID-19, the Integrative Medicine Clinic offers all services in a telemedicine format.

Individual Appointments:
Individual appointments with Dr. Salvador or Dr. Mark take place by phone or video.

Group Sessions:
Pastoral Care, Meditation, Arts in Medicine, and Yoga are offered each Thursday via Zoom video.
Integrative Medicine
at UAB

The new UAB Integrative Medicine Clinic provides care that focuses on the whole person, including his or her family members, to optimize wellness and address the challenges throughout the chronic disease or cancer care journey. Integrative medicine programs address the various physical, lifestyle, emotional, psychological, and spiritual needs of each individual patient, from prevention to survivorship and beyond.

The UAB Integrative Medicine Clinic is a new multidisciplinary program that offers the integrative medicine services listed on the following page. Some of these services are offered at The Kirklin Clinic of UAB Hospital, while others are available at alternate locations. The clinic will continue expanding its services to better serve patients.

What to expect on your first visit

Your first visit to the UAB Integrative Medicine Clinic will last one hour and will include one or more of the following:

- Integrative nutritional counseling
- Physical activity counseling
- Supplement counseling
- Breathing techniques/meditation and mind-body modalities
- Counseling on energy therapies, relaxation techniques, and modalities such as yoga, tai chi, and qigong
- Referral to physician (in-house)
- Referral to the Mindfulness Meditation program (in-house)
- Yoga (in-house)
- Spiritual counseling (in-house)
- Arts in Medicine programs
- Referrals to exercise physiology
- *Acupuncture (in-house, starting 2019)
- Fatigue evaluation (in-house)
- Sleep counseling (in-house)

*Acupuncture services are temporarily suspended due to COVID-19.

What is Integrative Medicine?

Integrative medicine is conventional medicine with complementary approaches to tackle the biological, psychological, social, and spiritual aspects of health and illness.

It focuses on the human capacity for healing and the relationship between practitioner and patient. The program features a collaborative approach to patient care among practitioners and utilizes evidence-based practices in conventional and alternative health care.